

COOKIES

The law requires us to tell you about cookies used on this site.

What are cookies?

Cookies are text files containing small amounts of information which are downloaded to your device when you visit a website. Cookies are then sent back to the originating website on each subsequent visit, or to another website that recognises that cookie. Cookies do different jobs, like letting you navigate between pages efficiently, remembering your preferences and generally improving your web site experience.

We can split cookies into 4 main categories:

Category 1 Strictly necessary cookies. We do not use this type of cookie on our website.

These cookies are used to remember your preferences and to facilitate moving around a website which operates secure (or login-protected) area of a website.

Category 2 Performance cookies. By using our website and online services, you agree that we can place these types of cookies on your device.

These cookies collect information about how visitors use a website. For example, they measure which pages visitors go to most often and if they get error messages from web pages. These cookies do not collect any information that identifies a visitor: information these cookies collect is aggregated and anonymous; it is used to provide general visitor statistics and improve how a website works.

Category 3 Functionality cookies. We do not use this type of cookie on our website.

These cookies allow the website to remember choices you make (such as your user name and password) and provide enhanced, more personal features.

Category 4 Targeting or advertising cookies. We do not use this type of cookie on our website.

These cookies are used to deliver adverts more relevant to you and your interests. They are also used to limit the number of times you see an advertisement as well as help measure the effectiveness of the advertising campaign.

You can find more information about cookies by visiting <http://www.allaboutcookies.org>